Using the HUD Resource Locator

To find information on affordable housing, use the HUD Resource Locator. If you do not have access to the internet, your local library will likely have internet access available, free of charge.

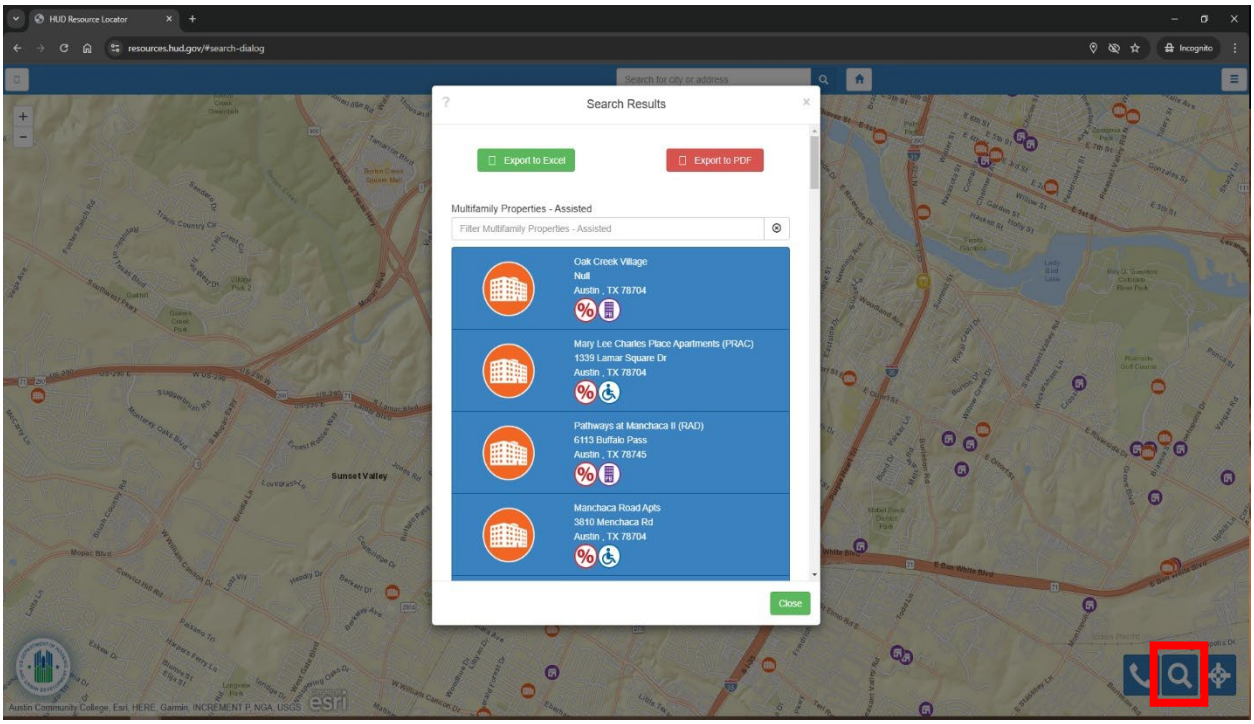

When you open the HUD Resource Locator, click the “View All Resources” option.

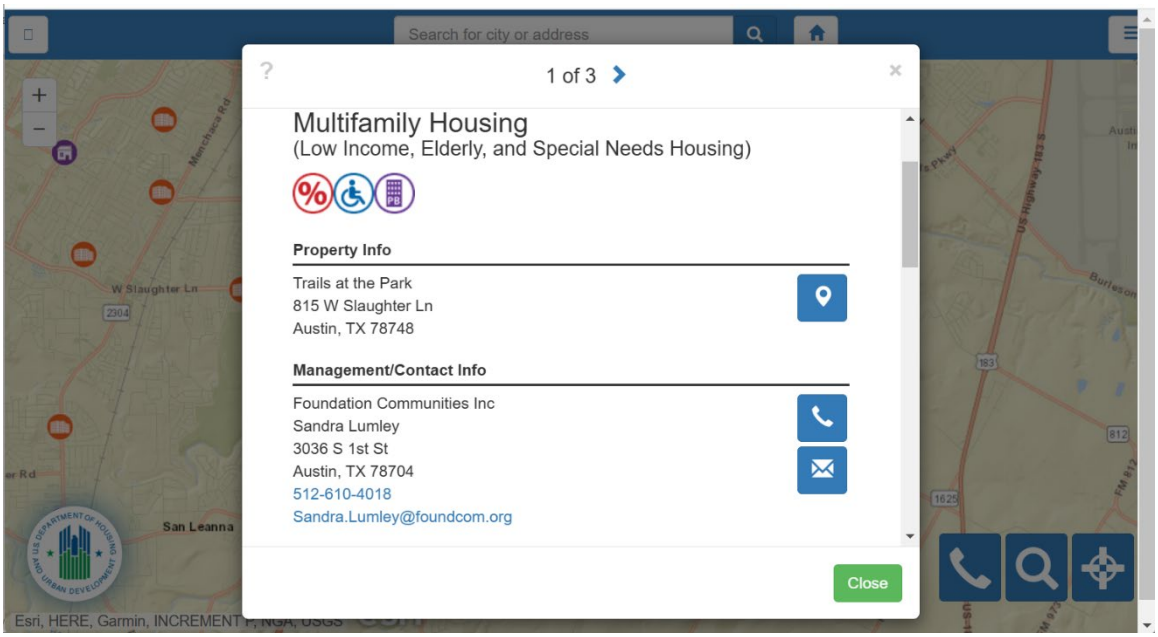

In the search bar at the top of the page that opens, enter the name of the city or the address you would like to search for affordable housing.

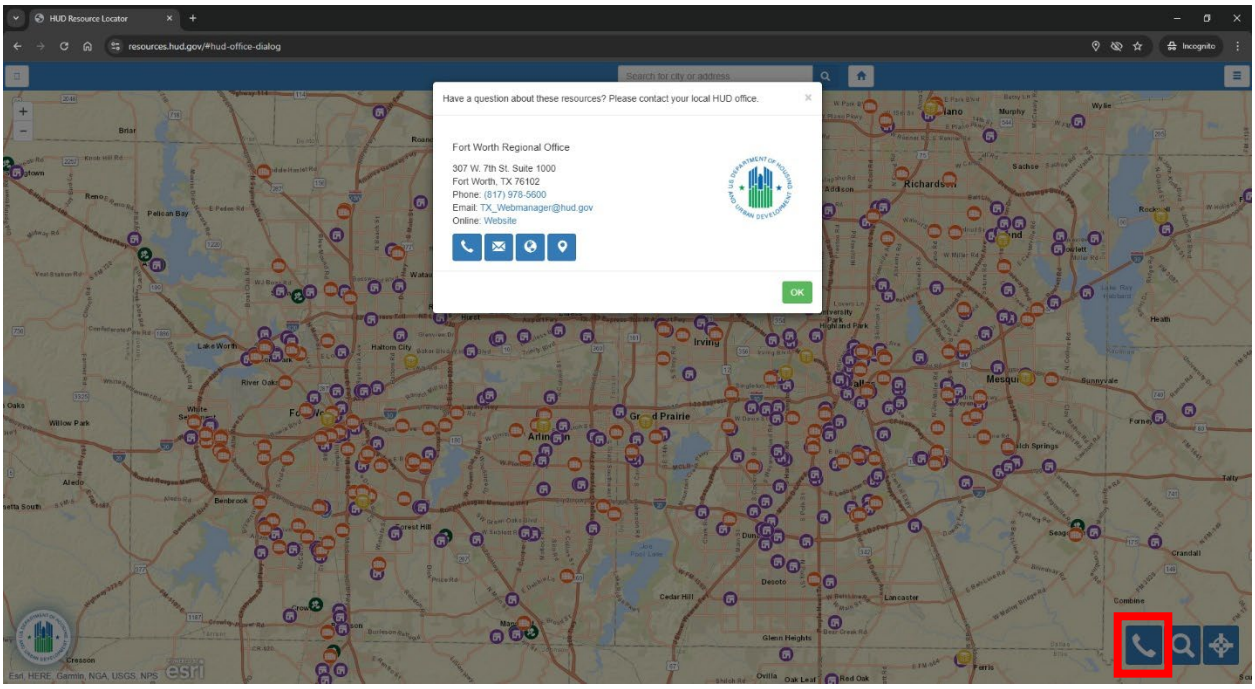

The interactive map will then show a map of subsidized properties, affordable properties, and Housing Authorities. If you click on the magnifying glass on the map, a window will show the properties in a list instead of a map.

Whether you're viewing the properties on the map or in a list, you can click on a property to get more information about it, including contact information. You can call or email the properties to see if they have open units or if there is an open waitlist. To exit a property, click the green "Close" button.

If you would like to contact the local HUD field office that covers the area you are searching in, click the phone icon in the bottom right-hand corner of the map. A window will popup with information about that field office.

Do you suspect discrimination?

If you suspect that a property is telling you “no” because of your disability, or some other discriminatory reason, but would let someone else rent, that is something we would like to know. You can connect with us by submitting an online intake form or by calling us at 1.800.252.9108.
